Why configurators?

The demand for configurators has increased strongly in recent years. This is due to the changing demands of consumers. They are no longer willing to choose between a variety of different offerings. They want products and system solutions that are configured to meet their specific requirements. A configurator enables the creation of individualized products, optimally tailored to the needs of the customers. The willingness to buy increases and the rate of returns decreases thanks to custom-made product solutions.

Why choose mach parat?

With experience and a wealth of ideas, we develop configurators for different product and system solutions for B2B and B2C. Over the years, we have created configurators for living room and bathroom furniture, planning tools for exteriors, and car and product configurators.

Our configurators offer intuitive use and a clear structure, as well as high-quality visualization of the products in 2D and 3D. Responsive design allows them to be used on desktops, tablets and smartphones.

The finished configurations can be saved, opened and edited. The user can be provided with a PDF file of the configuration with images, article lists and prices for the purpose of documentation. Furthermore, the configurations can be sent by email and shared on social media, if desired.

The configurators can be directly connected to shop systems so that the articles can be loaded out of the shop and configurations can be put into the shopping cart and ordered. Alternatively or additionally, the configuration can be sent to a dealer or manufacturer. A dealer search can be an ideal addition here.

Articles, information and prices can be edited easily and quickly. The configurator can be multilingual and facilitate various currencies.

We know that each configurator is subject to its own special product rules, which are defined by how modules are combined and where which material can be used, for example. We deliver the optimal concept for these often complex requirements.
